Adventurous Stills' Peralta Bourbon is Ranked "Outstanding" in Category

Tempe-based Distillery Receives Silver Medal for Bourbon at SF International Spirits Competition

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Tempe, AZ, April 24, 2018: Tempe-based Adventurous Stills' Peralta Bourbon is a San Francisco International Spirits Competition silver medal recipient. The spirit was among 2,200 entries into the event.

Adventurous Stills' Partner and Distiller Kelly Lattig said about the results, "We are very encouraged and excited for this win. Peralta Bourbon is one of our flagship products and, with how new we are to the industry, we were over the moon when we got the results. We make all of our products from grain-to-glass and look forward to creating more award-winning spirits."

The Competition is considered the most influential in the industry. This is the 18th competition and a Silver medal is awarded to products that are outstanding in their category. A Competition medal has become a recognized affirmation of high quality, and one of the most reliable and universal indications of spirits excellence. Medal winners represent some of the finest products from around the world.

About Adventurous Stills

Founded in 2015, Kelly Lattig and Jeff Reisinger built their distillery by hand, from making the stills from Arizona copper to moving material to make way for water lines. They wanted to make an outstanding product with local flair. Chase Estrin joined them in January of 2017 as he always wanted to be part of a small business and to help distribute the work load. Today, Adventurous Stills is one of four distilleries in the state of Arizona making all of their products from scratch and focus on education for this reason.
